11-18-15 Library as Center of Innovation Webinar Resource List

The IFLA Library Buildings and Equipment Facebook page is a place to share ideas on design and construction for all types of libraries in all parts of the world. One of the goals of the IFLA Library Building and Equipment section is better establish contacts between librarians and architects.
https://www.facebook.com/groups/1649951498620366/?fref=nf

The Library as Incubator Project was created to highlight the ways that libraries and artists can work together, and works to strengthen these partnerships. It promotes the library as an incubator for the arts. This website provides creative inspiration the features projects occurring across the country.
http://www.libraryasincubatorproject.org/

Inspirational Libraries
This is a website devoted to “The Bubbler” program at Madison Public Library in Wisconsin which includes background about the space as well as on-going information on activities and news.
http://madisonbubbler.org/

Aarhus Public Library opened their much talked about Dokk1 Library this Fall and continue to innovate in ways that are of interest around the world. https://www.aakb.dk/english/about-aarhus-public-libraries-0

The ALA LLAMA Resource page includes the library design awards and library interior design awards from the past several years. Lots of interesting ideas to share. http://www.ala.org/llama/resources

Makerspaces
Open Education Database website has an article that includes links to 16 resources for librarians interested in makerspaces. http://oedb.org/librarian/a-librarians-guide-to-makerspaces/

Libraries & Maker Culture is a website is intended to be a pathfinder or resource guide on the subject of makerspaces, maker culture, and 3D printing in libraries. It was created after completing practicum work at the University of Michigan 3D Lab [https://see rio.com/w/kxj/practicum-with-the-umich-3d-lab], which functions as a part of the university library system.
http://library-maker-culture.weebly.com/what-are-they.html

This is a blog from the Madison (WI) Public Library that includes a few somewhat non-traditional library programs they have created to take advantage of the one-on-one opportunities we have at the library today. http://librarymakers.blogspot.com/

Maker Faire is a website that highlights that faires occurring around the world and the activities taking place there. Many inspirational photos and ideas to see. http://makerfaire.com/maker-movement/

Here are some websites that offer ideas, resources, and other resources to help schools get started in making:
- Make Magazine’s guide for schools: http://makezine.com/2013/08/21/stocking-up-school-makerspaces/
- Edutopia article: http://www.edutopia.org/blog/designing-a-school-makerspace-jennifer-cooper
- School factory: a non-profit dedicated to helping schools start maker and hacker spaces: http://schoolfactory.org/